SCHOOL REPORT.

Without stopping to repeat the time-worn exhortations on "attendance" and "cooperation of parents," an outline of our work is here spread before our fellow-citizens, and we only ask for a candid verdict.

Whatever may be thought of our success, our aim has been to give all willing students generous aid. We wish our young people to grow up self-reliant and well poised; men and women able to meet the exigencies of life with manly energy and high moral purpose. Let us not forget that it is not so much the amount of ground gone over as the thorough mastery of principles that brings about this result.

To gain this mastery the power of concentration of thought is essential, and we know of no school room work that will do more in this direction than drill in mental arithmetic, explanations of problems from the board, and topical recitations in history, given in the pupil's own language. It is but just to say that during the past year we have listened with great satisfaction to such exercises.

It is gratifying to see the willingness of a large majority of the people in this town to appropriate money when called upon, thus giving us more schooling the past year, of which we were in much need.

The operation of the new text book law has added greatly to our work; much time was taken up in examination of books, with a view to introduction. A large correspondence had to be carried on with publishers in order to obtain satisfactory terms and conditions. Much time was also used in marking and distributing the books. It has taken a very much larger number of books to supply the schools than was at first expected; but we understand that other towns find themselves in the same situation, therefore we are not any more surprised than others at the results of the law.

The purchases are shown in the following table:

43	copies	Monroe's primer.

43	"	" second reader.
46	"	" third "
63	"	" fourth "

22	"	Meservey's book keeping.

32	sets	book keeping blanks
15	copies	text book records.

The call for books another year must be comparatively small, as the schools have now a good supply and quite a stock remains in the hands of the school board.

In some respects the law has failed to accomplish the purpose for which it was made. It was claimed that it would be a help to poor people to have their books furnished free. In some cases it is so, but according to our experience the past year it has, on the whole, helped those in easy circumstances more than the poor, since the larger part of the purchases have been made by the latter class.
